False and deceptive UN and WEF narratives on Corona/Reset/Agenda 2030 – all part of the one world government agenda of control

By Mark Keenan, Former Environmental Affairs Officer, United Nations, 30th October, 2020

For decades there have been false and deceptive narratives disseminated by organisations, including the United Nations (UN) and the World Economic Forum (WEF), by the governments that comply with these narratives and by the corporate-owned media.

These narratives include the deceptive political schemes of sustainable development, Agenda 21/2030, combating climate change, and the WEF 'reset' of Society under cover of what has been proven to be a fake pandemic (<https://mkeenan.ie/oct-20th-government-lies-official-data-shows-irelands-overall-mortality-rate-no-different-from-other-years/>). According to the World Health Organization's official statistics, up to 650,000 people normally die every year from flu, yet it is never before been called a 'pandemic', or regarded as a cause for a world lock-down.

Beyond the attractively designed rhetoric of politically defined sustainable development, deeper analysis shows it is a deceptive narrative that has facilitated ongoing globalisation, a process which has had serious detrimental consequences for the environment and the wellbeing of society. The concept of manmade climate change has been utilised for a political agenda of taxation.

Globalisation, artificially created boom-bust economic cycles, and the debt-money system have been central to the accumulation of immense wealth by the monetocracy, i.e., a small group that owns and controls the privately owned banking system, the money creation process, world finance and associated mega-corporations. These schemes and processes have all been utilised for the purposes of greed, power and authoritarian control to the general detriment of the overwhelming majority of the world population. The United Nation’s Agenda 21/2030, the Paris Climate Agreement, the Fourth Industrial Revolution and the proposed WEF ‘reset’ offer an insight into how a small group of extremely wealthy globalists want to further control and dictate the lives of all people over the course of the next decades as part of a plan for world governance.

An attempt to usher in a reset of society and one world government control under cover of the Coronavirus ‘situation’ and controlled economic demolition

The flawed economic and financial system was already in crash/failure mode prior to the Coronavirus ‘situation’. The flaws of the system were exposed in the banking crisis of 2008, endless quantitative (<https://www.wsws.org/en/articles/2019/10/19/pers-o19.html>) easing occurred from October 2019 onwards and a multi-trillion dollar bailout/wealth transfer (<https://ellenbrown.com/2020/06/22/meet-blackrock-the-new-great-vampire-squid/>) to financial asset management corporations was sanctioned in the U.S. in April 2020. This significant bailout event gained little media coverage in comparison to the coverage of the Coronavirus situation.

The truth is a controlled economic demolition is taking place. Over the past decades, a small group have gained and consolidated immense wealth via control of the debt-money creation system, privately owned mega-banks, and mega-corporations. This process was powered by the associated GDP hypergrowth paradigm of globalisation.

Over the decades, the debt-money component of the system has resulted in worldwide debt-slavery with virtually all governments in debt to the international private banking system. This served the immense wealth accumulation plans of those few in control of the system, but the system was ultimately flawed/unsustainable. These people have long planned to dismantle their flawed economic system and collapse society to the detriment of humanity, and clear a path/excuse for the introduction of their nefarious ideal – a technocratic authoritarian ‘reset’ of society and centralized one world government.

The WEF, an organisation with a corporate agenda known as the Fourth Industrial Revolution and with significant links to privately owned mega-banks, mega-corporations, and the U.N., is at the forefront of this attempted ‘reset’ of society. This ‘reset’ attempts to replace the old system of worldwide debt-money slavery with their new fascist system of technocratic authoritarianism under cover of a fake pandemic and is aligned with their deceptive political narrative of sustainable development. The ‘reset’ is an attempt by the WEF, globalist bankers and their political cohorts to push their fourth industrial revolution agenda of control.

The WEF attempt will fail in my opinion and is failing as millions of people are seeing through the agenda. The real divide in society is not the media fostered left versus right ‘punch and judy show’ – it is fascist authoritarianism versus human freedom. The power seekers versus the freedom lovers. There are those that just want to be left alone and there are those that just won’t leave them alone.

The Event 201 pandemic simulation was a simulation of a Coronavirus pandemic held just two months before the actual Coronavirus ‘situation’ in early 2020. It was held by the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation and the WEF. The scenario explained: “the pandemic will continue at some rate until there is an effective vaccine or until 80-90 % of the global population has been exposed. From that point on, it is likely to be an endemic childhood disease” and suggested solutions to a pandemic, such as the institution of a global centralized economic body that could handle the financial response to the Coronavirus.

Enter the ‘real’ coronavirus situation. Less than a month after the conclusion of Event 201 a worldwide Coronavirus ‘situation’ appeared in accordance with the Event 201 simulation and the ‘reset’ of the WEF was launched, in what the organisation said was in response to the Coronavirus. The Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation, a direct partner of the WEF, has been a major force behind efforts for a Coronavirus vaccination to be disseminated worldwide.

Many commentators and people worldwide can see that the situation is yet another problem-reaction-solution (Hegelian dialectic manipulation) created by these people to attempt to implement their plans for the so-called ‘reset’ and one-world authoritarian government control.

Government and corporate-media deceptions in relation to the Coronavirus

The overall situation has provided ample political leverage and a wave of fear was instilled amongst the general population, largely due to government propaganda and scare-mongering tactics of corporate-controlled media who utilised nothing less than trauma-based mind control to convince the people that they are all likely to die unless they do exactly what the world government orders. A fearful people are more compliant and accepting of authoritarian change. In 2020, drastic control and lockdown measures were quickly imposed on worldwide society in response to the coronavirus situation.

The book 'Covid19 – The Great Reset' by WEF Founder Klaus Schwab and Thierry Malleret utilises the Coronavirus situation as a major reason for the 'reset' and makes scaremongering statements such as:

“the Corona virus is spreading globally and sparing none”

“If no one power can enforce order, our world will suffer from a global order deficit”

“A Great Reset is necessary to build a new social contract... COVID-19 has accelerated our transition into the age of the Fourth Industrial Revolution.”

The book also states social distancing measures are likely to persist after the pandemic subsides and that ‘fear... will thus speed the relentless march of automation’. Yet Schwab admits in the book that the consequences of Covid 19 in terms of health and mortality are mild compared to previous pandemics and that HIV/AIDS was responsible for 100 times more deaths than Covid 19 (1). Millions of people have, therefore, challenged the mainstream/WEF narrative and posed the valid question ‘if the consequences are relatively mild why are drastic changes of mass societal control and surveillance being proposed and implemented?’.

Furthermore, the health dangers of vaccines (<https://mkeenan.ie/unsafe-technologies/>) are now widely known in society, yet a message from António Guterres, Secretary-General, United Nations, New York shows the U.N. is aligned with this vaccination agenda, he states:

“we need a people’s vaccine... None of us are safe until all of us are safe’

A multitude of deceptive aspects (<https://mkeenan.ie/corona-virus-hoaxagenda-for-control/>) of the Coronavirus situation have been exposed worldwide. For example, in Ireland official data shows Ireland’s overall mortality rate (https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=PRu6Mgb49Uk&feature=emb_title) is no different from previous years and previous flu seasons and Europe as a whole shows a similar situation. Ireland’s second wave shows no evidence (https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=PRu6Mgb49Uk&feature=emb_title) of concerning difference in respiratory ICU or excess mortality over previous years. Furthermore, in relation to the process of registering the number of Coronavirus deaths, a document from the Northern Ireland Government website (2) stated on page 10:

“The Department of Health count the number of deaths reported by health trusts, where the deceased had a positive test for COVID-19 and died within 28 days, whether or not COVID-19 was the cause of death...and whether or not Covid-19 was the primary underlying cause of death. The figures include cases where the doctor noted that there was suspected or probable corona virus infection involved in the death”

When this issue was exposed by concerned citizens on social media the document ~~was~~ deleted from the government website, but the document has been saved here (<https://mkeenan.ie/wp-content/uploads/2020/10/Deaths-Registered-in-NI-Week-34-2020.pdf>).

Furthermore, a report from the U.S. Federal Centers for Disease Control and Prevention in August 2020 showed that the number of actual deaths that occurred has been significantly misrepresented. The report drops a “bombshell” i.e. that in 94 percent of the cases of those who died from Coronavirus, another disease was also at work on the victim and the overwhelming majority of this 6% are aged over 80. The report states:

“For 6% of the deaths, COVID-19 was the only cause mentioned,” the CDC stated in its report, under the heading “Comorbidity.” – (3)

The ‘reset’ attempts to replace the system of worldwide debt-money slavery with a new fascist system of technocratic authoritarianism

The debt slavery paradigm has been in place for decades. This paradigm has been controlled by the privately owned worldwide banking system, and is evidenced by the fact that in 2020 virtually all governments (<https://www.therichest.com/rich-countries/the-only-5-countries-in-the-world-living-debt-free/>) of the world are in vast debt (<http://datatopics.worldbank.org/debt/ids/>) to the private international banking/finance system on debt-money the bankers created from nothing (<https://mkeenan.ie/product/book-one/>).

For decades, the international privately owned banking system has created debt-money from nothing and charged all governments and people often extortionist interest on it (usury). By this and other mechanisms it bled a significant percentage of the profits of the world’s nations. This resulted in immense wealth and political power for a tiny minority that own the private system of worldwide banking, but placed a financial debt burden of control on the nations of the world.

The cruel hoax is that governments could have created this money themselves. The last US President to attempt to take the money creation process out of the hands of the private bankers was John F Kennedy.

The flawed GDP hypergrowth/globalisation system was needed by the banking system, so that it could receive endless interest payments on debt-money loans created from nothing, yet for decades GDP growth caused environmental degradation and it has been a myth that the system “floated all boats”. During this time, the real economic welfare of the 99% of society, as estimated by the Genuine Progress Indicator, has decreased since 1978. The pseudo-science of contemporary economics used by all governments facilitated the process. Furthermore, by controlling the availability of credit the private banking cartel created boom-bust-bailout cycles (<https://mkeenan.ie/product/book-one/>) at will that placed nations in further debt.

Over decades the power of the bankers to create money resulted in the power to own, control and manipulate the assets of the material world, as well media and politics. A small group of people and the private mega-banks and mega- corporations they run, gained and consolidated control of the majority of the world’s financial wealth and assets.

This power grab was achieved not by creating more value, but by fully controlling the source of money and the financial world. A pyramid type system of hierarchical control has existed in society – it has operated via debt slavery. The higher up the pyramid you go the closer you get to the source of money creation. At the bottom level we are all going about our everyday lives.

At the next level up are governments. Governments are given a monopoly on force and use it to tax and control the population whether or not we agree. Who controls the governments? The election of new leaders via the illusion of representative democracy does not alter the vast government bureaucracy, which is ultimately subservient not to the people but to international finance. International banking and mega corporations control governments, i.e., at the next level up are the mega corporations and at the next level beyond the corporations is the privately owned worldwide banking cartel. The corporations have relied on cheap financing from the megabanks. We can conclude that those who control the mega-banks ultimately control the mega-corporations.

The old system of debt slavery may have reached its mathematical endpoint, due to peak oil, the consequent inability to grow economies further and the inability of governments to make ongoing interest payments. Recall that systemic problems in the economic system led to endless quantitative easing in 2019 and a multi-trillion-dollar banking bailout in 2020 that took place under cover of a virus. Regardless of the reason for the timing, it is clear that the 2020 “reset” is part of a long-term plan/agenda of control.

Representative democracy as currently implemented in much of the world is an illusion

Representative democracy under capitalism as currently implemented in much of the world, is an illusion – it is money that controls the world. Financial power translated into political power. Those that control the money creation process wield the power to control the corporate media, steer international political policy and own the material world, regardless of which political party is elected, or which system is utilised (capitalism, socialism, communism, etc). The real divide in society is not the media fostered left versus right ‘punch and judy show’ – it is the fascist authoritarianism of the money masters versus human freedom.

We have been under the impression that we each live in individual and autonomous nation states, but actually the mechanisms of a one world corporate and institutional government have already long been in operation.

Over the decades its controllers have facilitated a perpetual war machine causing death to countless of millions of people; mass abortion; genetically modified foods; thousands of chemical compounds, herbicides and pesticides harmful to human health; toxic pharmaceuticals and vaccines; fluoridated water; and widespread environmental destruction. Now in the midst of what has proven to be a mild virus situation, we are expected to believe that the leaders of the unelected WEF and its corporate partners, such as vaccine-promoting billionaire Bill Gates, are suddenly concerned for the lives of people? Does a vulture wish the cow to be alive or dead? Does a vulture government wish for the health of its citizens? (4)

The real sustainability movement was hijacked decades ago by the deceptive political scheme of sustainable development

Decades ago, the real sustainability movement was hijacked by the deceptive political scheme of sustainable development, which actually endorsed the unjust debt-money banking and flawed GDP hypergrowth economic system. Sustainable development is and has been a false narrative operating under cover of continued environmentally destructive globalisation. Sustainable Development is not real sustainability at all. It is a political scheme that has detracted from what real environmentalism is.

The subject of environmental sustainability and how to create a truly successful ‘sustainable’ society that nurtures human creativity, freedom, and wellbeing and that of the natural world have been central to my research for the past 15 years.

However, over the past decades the orthodox political agenda of ‘sustainable development’ that has been promoted by the UN. and the governments of the world has not worked. It has not addressed the unjust flawed systems of banking and economic control that benefitted an elite wealthy few at the expense of everyone else, nor has it solved the “real” environmental problems of the world. Furthermore, the loosely defined Brundtland definition of sustainable development used by the UN and governments for 30 years actually endorses GDP growth and is not a scientifically robust definition of sustainability.

There are detrimental environmental and societal effects associated with the debt-money banking and GDP growth economic paradigm (5). The worldwide private banking system has for decades been bleeding a significant percentage of the profit of nations of the world/the productive element of the economy.

For example, in recent years Ireland has been paying between €6 to 10 billion per annum in interest payments on the national debt and as a trading entity the country has been making a profit of around €40 billion per annum. Yet the political agenda of sustainable development does not reform these areas – in fact it has endorsed them for decades. The ‘real’ environmental and ‘real’ sustainability movement was hijacked decades ago by this political scheme known as sustainable development. By 2020, even the word ‘sustainability’ itself has become a dirty word to many people – with its modern political mechanisms far removed from the insightful writings of original sustainability visionaries of the 1970s.

Part of the political sustainable development strategy has been a delusional attempt to “decouple” environmental impacts from GDP growth. This decoupling strategy has failed, was never going work and I doubt it ever was intended to work. This is evidenced by a BIOS Research Institute study that reviewed 179 scientific studies on decoupling published between 1990 and 2019 – a period of nearly 30 years – and found, in short, that:

“the evidence does not suggest that decoupling towards ecological sustainability is happening at a global (or even regional) scale.” – (6)

BIOS Research Institute is an independent multidisciplinary scientific organisation that has previously advised the UN Global Sustainable Development Report on the risks of emerging biophysical limits to endless economic growth. The de-coupling concept has been utilised as a ploy to placate people concerned with the environmental impacts of rampant GDP growth – yet rampant globalisation and environmental degradation continued unabated for decades.

Politically defined ‘sustainable development’ has been an illusory light ‘greenwashing’ of the current flawed system, thereby temporarily perpetuating a system that will ultimately fail due to its unsustainable, ecocidal, and human welfare diminishing effects. Many seemingly worthwhile corporate and governmental sustainable development initiatives are in operation, but all have operated within the unquestioned paradigm (or status quo) of environmentally destructive GDP growth along with the debt-money private worldwide banking system that has placed much of humanity on a treadmill of debt.

In analysing sustainable development, we must expose these flaws and detrimental effects of the banking, economic and monetary system, as well as the undemocratic deceptive ‘reset’ of society that is being attempted in 2020 to replace the old flawed system.

UN sustainable development programs, such as Agenda 21, Agenda 2030, and the Paris Climate Agreement, as well as the economic ‘reset’ being attempted, all operate under the cover of continued globalisation. All are working together to create a new resource-based economic system. This may sound a worthy goal in light of the flaws of the failing growth-based economic paradigm.

However, closer analysis reveals that sustainable development involves an agenda ~~to take control~~ of all resources and all production, leaving all people to be micro-managed by a type of technocracy. This technocratic type society is outlined in Agenda 21/2030 and proposed by the WEF 'reset'. The political jargon of 'sustainable development/Agenda 21' is not true sustainability. Agenda 21 involves a plan to abolish private property rights and get all people off the land and into so-called smart towns and smart cities, where they will be unable to grow much food.

This is the opposite of what is needed – people should be moving back to the land and developing self-sufficient communities. Furthermore, smart cities utilise EMF technologies and thousands of scientific reports exist (<https://es-ireland.com/scientific-research/>) describing the harmful health effects of these technologies. An undemocratic dictatorship involving the rise of smart cities, surveillance, crypto currencies, and the drive toward a digital cashless society that people have no control over are all part of this globalist plan.

Creating a truly sustainable society involves developing practical locally empowered self-sufficient rural communities of villages and towns with local and regional systems for food, energy, water, goods and services rather than the unsustainable trans-national systems of the so-called globalised economy or the corporation-serving technocratic futures the WEF have planned for us. It also involves living conscious of the needs of others and of the purity of natural environmental resources we all rely on.

Climate Change – 900 scientists have signed a declaration disputing the IPCC carbon emissions narrative

It is my opinion (<https://mkeenan.ie/truth-about-co2>) that the narrative of the UN Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change (IPCC) is incorrect. I have signed a declaration to this effect at www.clintel.org (<http://www.clintel.org>) along with 900 other scientists and professionals. I have zero commercial interest in stating this position.

I kindly urge the many well-intentioned people working in the environmental and sustainable development sector to please re-evaluate the evidence/data in relation to the IPCC narrative that carbon (CO₂) emissions are causing climate change and to be open-minded to the analysis of other scientists.

The concept that CO₂ emissions cause climate change is a flawed theory and it has involved a political agenda of taxation that has been incessantly promoted for decades. This agenda has detracted and distracted significantly from peoples understanding of what real environmentalism is and involves.

The geological archive reveals that Earth's climate has varied as long as the planet has existed, with natural cold and warm phases. The world has warmed significantly less than predicted by IPCC on the basis of modelled anthropogenic forcing. The gap between the real world and the modelled world tells us that we are far from understanding climate change. Climate models have many shortcomings and are not remotely plausible as global policy tools. They blow up the effect of greenhouse gases, such as CO₂, and ignore the fact that enriching the atmosphere with CO₂ is beneficial. Furthermore, relevant data showing temperatures were higher in the early 1900s than today appears to have been omitted (7).

CO₂ is plant food, the basis of all life on Earth. Thousands of actual industrial pollutants exist, but CO₂ is not a pollutant. It is essential to all life on Earth. Photosynthesis is a blessing. More CO₂ is beneficial for nature, greening the Earth: additional CO₂ in the air has promoted growth in global plant biomass. It is also good for agriculture, increasing the yields of crops worldwide (8).

The UN Agenda 2030 plan and the Paris Agreement goal to reduce CO₂ emissions by 7% per annum until 2030 is in effect a plan that will disable the resource mechanisms of the industrial economy for the food, energy and goods that enable human life and survival. This is being done before humanity has transitioned away from the flawed trans-national industrial economy toward self-sufficient local economies. Whether you believe the 'plug is being pulled' intentionally or not, this inevitably amounts to a de-population outcome. The dependency of humanity was created for decades by an international political corporate hierarchy rampantly promoting and implementing flawed trans-national systems for agriculture, energy and goods. I conclude, that the science and data behind the IPCC CO₂ narrative is flawed and the Paris Agreement plan to reduce CO₂ emissions so quickly would have a de-population effect. These potentially genocidal narratives must be exposed.

Conclusion

The United Nations, European Union, and most governments are not serving the people, for decades they have been prioritising the interests of private bankers who control the money system; and the interests of institutions, such as the WEF, which prioritises the interests of privately-owned mega-corporations. The privately owned banking/money creation system is the head of the snake.

The current worldwide situation has serious implications for the future of worldwide society and human wellbeing. The 'reset' agenda is an imposition against human freedoms and is being exposed worldwide.

As sovereign free peoples, we urgently need to start planning, connecting with each other and creating much more self-sufficient local communities, towns, and regions free of the mainstream economy. Whilst respecting 'real' environmental principles and the natural world we rely on, we should disavow the fake deceptive narratives of the 'reset', sustainable development and combating climate change.

The path for success involves personal freedom and local independence – not centralization, authoritarianism and slavery. If people are not dependent on the system they cannot be controlled by the system. How many people will accept the globalist authoritarian system and how many will fight for freedom and create their own local systems? You are part of the answer.

I have no doubt that the short-term effects of this 'reset' are likely to be bad for many people, but that the long-term opposition to these unjust changes will eventually bring an end to the present system of nefarious corporate control and manipulation. These subjects are further described in my book "Globalism Unmasked: The Truth about Banking and Reset of Society (<https://mkeenan.ie/>)".

God Bless and best wishes in the years ahead.

Additional information relevant to the above article added 4th November 2020

The Green New Deal is another term that is part of the deceptive green washing – it is simply ongoing destructive globalisation painted green. Many other commentators, including Peter Koenig have identified these flaws, he points out “it is sold under the label of creating a more sustainable world (<https://www.globalresearch.ca/insanity-sustainability/5725348>)”. Socalled, greening of the economy is designed to preserve the status quo and the position of those few in control.

It is important for the millions of well-intentioned environmentalists to realise that the cost and destructive impact of the polically defined Green New Deal on the resources of the natural world is truly immense. In relation to current green energy technologies, The Energy Returned on Energy Invested (EROEI) is much too low – in essence the entire process is seriously flawed. The amounts of energy (and thus hydrocarbons) that would be needed to convert our current economy into the UN/WEF defined green economy are truly vast – it is not green at all. Printing many trillions of dollars of new money and throwing it into the politically defined Green New Deal process is a road to nowhere and a vast waste of the world’s precious resources that still exist. Most economists do not understand that the economy runs on energy – not money!

The energy cost (hydrocarbon-energy from oil and coal) and resource cost of producing solar panels and windmills on a worldwide basis is truly immense. Electric cars are still driven by electricity produced from fossil fuels – plus their batteries made from materials sourced from rare earth mines that create vast pollution

(<https://www.theguardian.com/environment/2012/aug/07/china-rare-earth-village-pollution>).

Electric cars are not “sustainable” at all. If you think you are being green by buying an electric car you are not – you are another victim of deceptive corporate advertising and flawed political policies that are not actually green at all, but are aligned with ongoing destructive globalisation.

Furthermore, it appears that the age of oil and therefore current industrial society as we know it may soon be over regardless. In an article The End of the Oilcene

(<https://www.feasta.org/2020/02/07/end-of-the-oilcene-the-gathering-storm/>), analyst Mr. Tim Clarke indicates that the current Energy Returned on Investment (EROI) of fossil fuels is too low to sustain industrial economies. He states:

“The EROI of fossil fuels has dramatically reduced

(<https://www.sciencedirect.com/science/article/abs/pii/S0921800915303815>)... Between 1960 and 1980, the world average value EROI for fossil fuels declined by more than half, from about 35:1 to 15:1. It’s still declining

(<https://www.sciencedaily.com/releases/2019/07/190711114846.htm>), with latest estimates putting the value at between 6:1 and 3:1.”

Current Green technologies are not a viable solution to the world’s energy problems

It must be pointed out that adopting various so-called “green” energy technologies that have been promoted to produce or save energy is analogous to increasing consumption. This occurs because the structures, electricity grids, mining operations, manufacturing operations and trans-national transportation required for this technology creation and adoption use an immense amount of energy. Furthermore, current green energy technologies do not give back the energy with a sufficient “energy return/energy profit” to make the process viable. We have not developed effective and efficient alternative sources of energy. Furthermore, the Jevons paradox comes into play, whereby efficiency gains of resource-efficient technologies can translate into yet more consumption.

Consumption really means the consumption of energy (<https://www.feasta.org/2020/02/07/end-of-the-oilcene-the-gathering-storm/>) and natural resources embedded in manufactured products. Making more so-called green stuff is not going to fix the basic problem of reduced energy availability in the future. The promoters of the politically defined “green” future, that includes plans such as the widespread implementation of wind turbines, being pedalled to us, unfortunately, do not know what they are talking about –

For example, rigorous mathematical analysis proves that wind turbines are not a viable solution to the world’s energy problems. This is evidenced by the work of Professor David MacKay, Regius Professor of Engineering at Cambridge University and former Chief Scientific Advisor to the UK’s Department of Energy and Climate Change, in his book “Sustainable Energy without Hot Air” see Endnote (8). He states that an area twice the size of the entire country of Wales would need to be completely covered with wind turbines to meet the energy demand in the U.K., based on average energy consumption per person. The following is an important extract from his book:

“First, for any renewable facility to make an appreciable contribution – a contribution at all comparable to our current consumption – it has to be country-sized. To provide one quarter of our current energy consumption by growing energy crops, for example, would require 75% of Britain to be covered with biomass plantations. To provide 4% of our current energy consumption from wave power would require 500 km of Atlantic coastline to be completely filled with wave farms. Someone who wants to live on renewable energy, but expects the infrastructure associated with that renewable not to be large or intrusive, is deluding himself.”

Second, if economic constraints and public objections are set aside, it would be possible for the average European energy consumption of 125 kWh/d per person to be provided from these country-sized renewable sources. The two hugest contributors would be photovoltaic panels, which, covering 5% or 10% of the country, would provide 50 kWh/d per person; and offshore wind farms, which, filling a sea-area twice the size of Wales, would provide another 50 kWh/d per person on average. Such an immense panelling of the countryside and filling of British seas with wind machines (having a capacity five times greater than all the wind turbines in the world today) may be possible according to the laws of physics, but would the public accept and pay for such extreme arrangements? If we answer no, we are forced to conclude that current consumption will never be met by British renewables.“ (8)

Conclusion

The WEF reset and politically defined UN green futures do not empower local communities – the mega-corporations retain control. The conclusion is the same as already stated above: As sovereign free peoples, we urgently need to start planning, connecting with each other and creating much more self-sufficient local communities, towns, and regions free of the mainstream economy. Whilst respecting ‘real’ environmental principles and the natural world we rely on, we should disavow the fake deceptive narratives of the ‘reset’, sustainable development and combating climate change. The path for success involves personal freedom and local independence – not centralization, authoritarianism and slavery.
